editorial article, showing, by the report of the West Virginia and other asylums agricultural pursaits than among "dwellers in towns." There was so much sound philosophy and good reason in the statements made by the writer,—both in proving that he was correct and in account ing for the cause,—that we have given the subject some consideration; and we find that his ideas in this regard will bear the Hitherto, the fresh air of the country the pure water of the mountain springs, and the healthful exercise attendant upon an agricultural occupation, have been re garded as in every way conducive to-physical and mental health, and ultimate longevity. We regret to see this favorite ides exploded by the stern logic of facts and figures; but it is a truth abundantly and ngures; but it is a truth abundantly proven by statisticians that farmers are not near so long-lived as persons engaged in trade, and living in towns and cities. For illustration; Out of 68,997 sg-ricultural laborers in Pennsylvania, only 2,016 are 60 years of sge, and out of 134. 526 in New York; but 5,884 are over three-score. By reference to the censua report it will be seen that the same prince. report, it will be seen that the same prinple applies in all other States, not only regards longevity, but in cases of men-l disorder. The average rate of human ciple applies in all other States, not only as regards longevity, but in cases of mental disorder. The average rate of human lile (after arriving at maturity) is 33 years; but it is shown by vital statistics that preachers, lawyers, doctors, merchants, and members of almost all the trades and professions, live, on an average, nearly the truth. And the writer of this does not wish to be so interpreted as to seem the region of the truth. And the writer of this does not wish to be so interpreted as to seem the region of the truth. and members of almost all the trades and professions, live, on an average, nearly twice as long as farmers. West Virginia, as we shall show, is an agricultural community; and the average rate of life here (of the whole population) is but 18 years. Statistics also place it beyond doubt that in the cities and towns, extreme and vigorous old age are to be met with much more frequently than in the country, and they also point unerringly to the fact that

The report of the Superintendent of the West Virginia Hospital for the Insane shows that there are now in that institution 151 males, of whom 106 are farmers, and 45 have been engaged in trades, proclessions, &c. (And the officers of the Asylum inform us that the same ratio will apply to the female patients—that is, much the greatest number are tweives and daughters of farmers)

The reader will discover, by aid of the table given above, that there is one insane male person in every 695 565-106 of those engaged in agricultural pursuits, while there is but one insane male person to every 741 0 45 of the whole number engaged in professions, trades, etc., thus showing a very marked discrepancy in this regard, against the country, and in layor of the fowns and cities, whera professional men and mechanics most docongregate. And if it be true that the same ratio applies to the female patients, then the result appears much more deplorable. If 100 ont the 130 temales are the wives and daughters of farmers (and that would be the proportion), the figures would stand as follows: From the agricultural pursuits, 206; from all other pursuits, 75; or one insane person in every 559 6200 of those engaged in agricultural pursuits, while, according to the same allowed, and the proportion of the following, there is but one insane person in every 552 69.75 of all other classes.

Thus, taking into consideration the supposed unhealthy condition of the towns and cities, as compared wiff the supposed healthfulness of country II.e, this showing produces results that must create a considerable revolution as to a popular idea; and at the same time turnishes food for reflection to the intelligent farmer. If the causes were obce fully understood, a remedy for this swil would naturally follow; and we suggest that some one who desires to be a benefactor of, his race, set himself to work to solve the problem.

The subject is one of such peculiar interest to us, as an agricultural commu-terest to us, as an agricultural commupeople at heart, should give it careful con-sideration. A discussion of the matter might result in good, and we tender the use of our columns to all who are that Levity in the Discussion of Religious country? Simply nothing. True, the material they have had to work upon his been of the rudest kind, but something might have been done, if but little. Had "Amicus" ventures to suggest to "J. H.

McMechen" that between them there is no difference. Any apparent disagreement arises from the fact that they have in mind things which are nearly related but which nevertheless are to be distinguished. Many a wordy dispute has originated in a precisely similar manner. By levity "Amicus" means a disposition to triffe. Often the New York Herald takes up the most solemn religious matters and discusses them with no more seriousness than if it was publishing an article about a fashionable party. Among the crews of sailing vessels, and especially of those which are bound on long woyages, it is the custom to make light of almost everything which can happen. If as man loses his hold in the rigging and death by drowning, he is expected to triffe the see and death by drowning, he is expected to triffe the see and death of the see "Amicus" ventures to suggest to "J. H. cal press. It is not at all probable that it will be true of it. Still there seemed to be a propriety at this early stage to say that it is not a becoming fashion. "J. H. McMechen," by levity, probably means the use of ridicule, and that lighter artillery in general with which it is no doubt legitimate sometimes to shoot at folly. The "civil funeral" and the religious procession of the proportion than Other Occupations?

Dear Sir—I have not words to express my gratitude to you for your advice and assistance in my case. There is not one who has used your medicines since they have been brought here but that can say with me they have been greatly benefitted. Since I have been so helped by its use six or saven around me left off all doctors and other medicines, and now use it in their families, after being cured of the same disease as mine: You do not know, what, a wonder it created in our city, by "Amicus" also had in mind a different sort of problems from those of which "J. H. McMechen" writes. He referred the crisis in the Episcopal church, the personality of the devil, and the fall of what a wonder it created in our city, by man. In regard to these there may be a place for ridicule and satire. But for any lack of seriousness there can be no room. Truth and lalsehood in reference to them for she had been under the care of three of our best doctors but could not sit up but for a few minutes at one time. I begged of her to try your medicines, and before she had used half of the bottles she could go all around the yard, and has now just come home from a visit five miles away. Mrs. Thos. McFarland

Taking into consideration the character of its vouchers, the history of its cures and its immense annualesses. Hostetter's Stoesach Bitters may be fairly entitled the Foremost Tonic of the Age. It is not only a tonic but a constitutional and local alterative, and its tendency is to substitute healthy for diseased action throughout the system. If the stomach is feeble and torpid it produces a vitalizing impression upon its mucous dissues. No soomer has the dyapptic swallowed a dose of it than he knows by his sensations that his stomach has received an accession of vigor. As the virture of medicines can only be ascertained by careful observation, it is to be regreted that many of the Drugs still prescribed by some physicians should retain a piace in our Materia Medica. As an instance of this, that vile tiring. Balasam Copabla, furnishes an example. About the year 130, the Banalarda in the Island of San Doningo, naving become afficied with extrint compaints, thought, according to the prevailing notion at that time, that the remedy might be found where the disease originated.
